Reported Evacuation Of City By Huns Meets Official Denial

unsuccessful counter-attacks in the Aachen area. The enemy suffered heavy losses inflicted by Yank infantry attacking with close artillery support.

North of Aachen German infantry and tanks were engaged by the First Army in Bardenberg.

Southeast of Aachen the troops commanded by Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges advanced against stubborn Nazi resistance to cut the Monschau-Duren road a mile southwest of Hurtgen.

The garrison at Aachen was hammered for five hours yesterday by medium Allied bombers but continued to hold out in the citadel, first major German city to come under siege.

In the Netherlands the Germans withdrew from one area along the south bank of the lower Rhine, enabling British forces to gain control of a strip running westward a distance of 12 miles from a point a mile west of Arnhem.

Cling To Bridgehead

The Allied bridgehead over the Leopold canal was held firmly and landing points on the south shore of the Schelde estuary were reinforced.

On the Third Army front in France hard fighting continued in Mainz-Leis-Metz where the Germans were using the basements of houses as anti-tank positions.

"We repulsed a strong counter-attack in the vicinity of Etricot, north of Nancy," headquarters said.

Fresh enemy counter-attacks were beaten down in the Vosges hills by the Allied Seventh Army.

Limited advances were scored northeast of Epinal and in the Le Thillot area.

The village of Sapois was captured, and a bridgehead over the Moselle river was extended.

Fifth Presses Attack

On the Italian front, the American Fifth Army pressed an attack on Livorno, key point on the route to Bologna from Florence.

Flanking maneuvers were carried out simultaneously by other Fifth Army forces moving west of Monte Rimici.

Brazilian troops captured the town of Barga in the west coast sector of the front near the Ligurian sea. British and Indian columns of the Eighth Army crashed forward two miles in the Adriatic sector in the foothills south of the Bologna-Rimini highway.

The long-expected Russian drive into East Prussia appeared near as Red spearheads slashed into the Lithuanian border town of Ponove on the route to Koenigsberg, capital of the Reich province.

A Moscow radio dispatch said Soviet armor had pierced a strong German defense line in the Memel area on the approaches to East Prussia. Capture of Szeged, second largest city of Hungary, was announced in a special order of the day by Premier Marshal Stalin. A new Red offensive was reported by Berlin north of Warsaw.

Additional Allied daylight raids on west and southwest Germany were reported in a Nazi air raid warning. More flying bombs fell in England.

Avila, a city in Spain capital of the province of Avila, stands on a slope of bleak Castilian hills, surrounded by gray granite walls and castellated towers in perfect preservation, and is one of the most remarkable fortress cities in Spain.

The Bible is now being printed in Canada for the first time. This is due to wartime shortages of labor and raw materials in Great Britain and the United States.

The first white men to explore the Rocky Mountain region were trappers, who penetrated into the territory in 1811.

States, and is seriously short of dollar exchange.

Though Britain is still buying iron, phosphates and oranges from Spain, the economic situation in that country is becoming acute.

Officials acknowledged that "this makes it tough for Franco, but we are not supporting Franco."

This statement was made with a good deal of emphasis, intended to redeem the state department from charges of "appearing the Spanish dictator." It was made clear that past dealing with Franco was a matter of military expediency, and with the passing of that problem, Franco will be left to shift for himself.

Already there is a resurgence of republican strength in Spain, which has been suppressed since the loyalist defeat in the Spanish civil war.

REBECCA J. CLENDENEN DIES AT RURAL HOME

Mrs. Rebecca Jane Clendenen, 73, widow of William Clendenen, died Thursday at 2 a. m. at her home in Madison township, Fairfield county, southeast of Amanda. She was a native of Fairfield county.

She was the daughter of Benjamin and Emeline Shupe Marshall.

Mrs. Clendenen leaves one daughter, Mrs. Anna Wiseman, of near Lancaster, two sons, Charles and Ray Clendenen, of the home; two step-daughters, Mrs. Cora Bussert and Mrs. Sadie Bussert, both of Lancaster.

Funeral services will be Saturday at 2 p. m. at the residence with the Rev. Edwin Frazier of Amanda officiating. Burial in charge of the Deffenbaugh funeral home will be in Amanda township cemetery.

LABOR LEADERS BLAST WLB FOR 'PASSING BUCK'

sessions on the question of modifying the wage freeze, industry and public members of the WLB teamed up to approve a resolution eight to four, with labor dissenting) stating that the board would "not include in its factual report to the President any recommendation for action one way or the other with regard to the little steel formula."

"The board is not sufficiently informed as to the possible effect a modification of the little steel formula on the price structure, and on the national economy generally, to warrant assurance that any modification could be made 'consistent with the stabilization needs of the country and with the provisions of the act of October 2, 1942,'" the resolution said.

The board announced further that it would decide pending cases according to present policy, although they could be reopened in event of any change in the stabilization program. The WLB also rejected, eight to four, an AFL resolution to request President Roosevelt to revise the wage formula upward to compensate for higher living costs.

Labor Members Object

In a separate statement, the four labor members of the board declared that the resolution was "a clear surrender of the board's commitments to exercise its judgment."

"It is an indefensible demonstration of timidity, by men who are charged with the duty of advising the President of any changes which the present situation may require," the labor group said.

"This is tantamount to an admission by the public members of the board that they are not competent to perform their duties. They are specifically charged with the responsibility of administering the wage policy of the government and they ought to be in a better position than any other single group of men in the country to have informed opinion as to any necessary changes in the country's wage policy."

As to the WLB's willingness to make recommendations on reconversion wage policies, the labor members asserted that "the board's inconsistency is astounding."

"The board feels fully competent, however, to make recommendations on matters which have not yet occurred, matters on which it has had no experience, heard no cases, and been in no position to make any more than a guess," they said. "The only conclusion we can draw on the action of the board today is that it deems that no change in the little steel formula should be recommended."

REVOLT AGAINST PAC MOUNTS IN CHICAGO AREA

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—A revolt of members of the CIO against the organization's Political Action Committee flared into the open in Chicago today as 50 unionists adopted a resolution condemning the PAC.

The men, a majority of them from Local 998 of the United Automobile Workers Union, staged a protest meeting at 6th Ward Republican headquarters last night and after listening to a number of speakers adopted the resolution.

It read:

"We condemn the efforts of the

to visit Mussolini frequently in a mountain hotel on Gran Sasso.

Here are the highlights of Risorgimento Liberales' story:

Mussolini used to listen constantly to the radio. He was shocked one night to hear that the Allies, as part of their peace terms, were demanding delivery of his person.

He became Greatly agitated.

"How could such a thing be possible?" he ranted.

He allegedly told the captain of the guard he preferred death to being handed over to the British.

That same night, even though he was under constant surveillance, he tried to open the veins of his wrists with a razor blade. But, for a reason not explained, he did not finish the job although later his wrists bore deep scratches.

Instead he is reported to have written the captain of the guard:

vast armies deployed upon the continent.

The general told war correspondents that the Allies will continue their aggressive policies until Germany is beaten, but he refused to give an estimate on when the war in Europe will end.

He declared his belief that the Nazi fanatics will never give up from what he had seen of them. They will go into mountain retreats and underground, he said. The general admitted that if he were in the shoes of the Nazis he would do the same thing.

He emphasized that the strategic plan of the Allied armies in the west was to go to Berlin and smash Germany, with no intention to rest until the war is won.

To Be Stern

Gen. Eisenhower said there was reported to be an underground saboteur-type of organization in Germany with which the Allies will have to deal after the war.

He emphasized that Allied forces will have no connection with the German population.

"We will go in as conquerors, treat them justly and have nothing else to do with them," he said.

So far as he is concerned, Gen. Eisenhower said, if the Germans are going to talk to the Allies, they are going to talk our language.

Gen. Eisenhower said that some proportion of the Germans see no hope of continuing the war and would like to throw up the sponge. But they are inarticulate, he said, and do not dare give effect to their desires.

CIO-Political Action Committee in dealing in power politics and urge every member of our local to wholeheartedly refuse to support the CIO-PAC by refusing to contribute any money to it."

Clarence V. Dye of Oak Park, inspector and union steward at the Studebaker aircraft plant in Chicago and a leader in the fight against the PAC, revealed he has been called before the executives board of local 998. Dye said he was told he was "bringing reproach on the union" and was liable for trial.

"No doubt I'll be brought to trial," he said, adding that the mere mention by a union member that he was a Republican was enough to bring punitive action.

CHINESE NEED NURSE ADMITS TANKS AND GUNS CHILD THEFT NELSON REPORTS

Dowling declined to divulge the text of the confession until the alleged kidnapper appears in court.

"Mrs. Smith has confessed," Dowling said. "I owe her the respect of her confidence and can only say that the confession was complete."

Queried as to whether the woman had explained her reason for her action, Dowling said:

"Mother, Wife"

"It was the mother urge—simply the love of children."

"She has retracted all of the false statements she made earlier. No one else was involved in the kidnapping."

Mrs. Smith, who disguised the baby to darken its skin, did not 'break' until she was confronted by Inspector George McLellan with the clothing she had worn when posing as a maid for the Kings.

The clothes were found in her home in Detroit.

Inspector McLellan, who had worked 36 hours without sleep on the case, pleaded with the woman to discard her role of injured innocence and tell the truth, Dowling asserted.

The confession followed.

Earlier, a physical check revealed the child had suffered no ill effects while in the Smith home, and had, gained a pound and a half.

Although Nelson's study reportedly stressed the extreme urgency for tanks and guns, he was represented as sharing the confidence voiced by Chinese leaders that the nation now in its eighth year of the war with Japan would withstand defeat.

MRS. CLARA HAAS WEAVER DIES AT MT. CARMEL

Mrs. Clara Haas Weaver, 80, wife of Clayton E. Weaver, of Walnut township, died Wednesday at 8 p. m. in Mt. Carmel hospital from complications following an illness of several months. Mrs. Weaver had been a member of Nebraska grange for 64 years and was a member, also, of the Cedar Hill Evangelical church.

A native of Walnut township, Mrs. Weaver was born July 7, 1864, and was the daughter of John G. and Harriet Hedger Haas. She was married November 25, 1886, at her home in Walnut township to Clayton E. Weaver, who survives together with five daughters, Alice, Anna S. and Harriet B. Weaver, of the home; Mrs. Mabel W. Pexton and Miss Elizabeth M. Weaver of Dayton. She leaves also two grandsons.

Funeral services will be Saturday at 3 p. m. at the family home

RESTRICTION ON TRAVEL TO STAY AFTER V-E DAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—Civilians who have borne the pinch of wartime travel restrictions "with good grace" are going to have to continue to give way to the military forces for some time after victory in Europe.

That was the statement made today by E. P. Burke, passenger traffic manager of the Pullman company, who asserted that America's fighting men will continue to come first when sleeping car allotments are made after V-E day.

PUMPKIN SHOW THOUGHTS FILL FIGHTER'S MIND

Raymond Smith Serving In Europe Writes About
Big Celebration

Cincinnati and Pickaway county boys now fighting on the world's war fronts probably are recalling memories of the famous Pumpkin Shows of the past as time for the annual event approaches.

At least one Cincinnati man is thinking about the happy times he enjoyed at the annual event while he is fighting in Europe. "My kingdom for a hamburger, and with onions, too!" writes Pfc. Raymond H. Smith, former member of the Cincinnati police department, in a letter to Patrolman Elmer Merriman.

Here is his letter which probably reflects the thoughts of hundreds of Cincinnati countians in service:

"There is nothing eventful to report from here that would pass the censor. Life is drabby routine and I am well. How are you? Like everyone should be at Pumpkin Show time, healthy and happy? That's fine. The old home town of Cincinnati will soon be a crowded midway as the annual Pumpkin Show begins. How well can I recall this gala fall event?"

Pictures Show

"The many concessions which represent this world-wide famous fall festival, the pumpkin and corn displays, livestock and poultry exhibits, amusement concessions, the rides, the parades, the tantalizing lunch stands (my kingdom for a hamburger, and with onions, too!), the free attractions all make for fun to every visitor.

"I can see the crowd, young and old, each possessing a key to the town, in spirit, presented by the committee, as they gaily and boisterously jostle their way along the avenues of agricultural phenomena and fun-giving amusements. They pause here and there to admire the ribbon bedecked displays, try a game of chance, see a sideshow, thrill to a ride on the Hey Day, watch the children enjoy their rides, form a path for the unexcelled parades or stand spell-bound to the performance of the free attractions. And finally satisfy their fun-hungered appetites at the inviting food displays, then reluctantly go home to await the coming day of festivities.

Chants of Barkers

"The chants of the amplified barkers' voices, 'hit 'em and knock 'em, sock 'em and rock 'em, peel 'em right off boys, they have more jackets 'on 'em than onions.' Or, 'See all the sideshows, freaks and curiosities! See Zemo the wild man, captured in the sand-hills of Mexico, fifteen thousand miles off the coast of Africa.' Yes, and all to this has often made my heart thrill to the joy of fun and excitement.

"I have heard the carnival tunes played on the merry-go-round at the courthouse square and know why the Cincinnati Pumpkin Show is always a 'Blue Ribbon Winner.' May the show go on year after year!"

No Comment

DECLARING published reports of the "Battle of the Statler" as "ridiculous and untrue," Daniel J. Tobin, Teamsters' union president, said a statement from him would only "be giving dignity to the affair." The union chief was questioned about the brawl, which ensued when two naval officers were asked how they would vote in November by a group of teamsters in Washington, as he left the White House, after a parley with Roosevelt. YANK GUNNERS SHOOT CURVES TO KILL NAZIS

WITH THE AMERICAN THIRD ARMY, Oct. 12—"Shooting around the corner" became an actual fact in the underground tunnel of Fort Driant under Metz.

An American assault unit encountered a right angle turn 350 feet inside and met up with Nazi fire from somewhere within.

For the last four days the Americans have been blasting their way through the tunnel, blowing out steel doors. The right-angle turn was found underneath the central turreted bastion of the fort.

Encountering German fire for the first time since penetrating the tunnel, the Americans replied by ricocheting their shots against the wall.

Methodist Brotherhood Observes Ladies' Night With Excellent Program

"What's Right With The Church?" was the theme of Rev. Harold Lancaster, pastor of the King Avenue Methodist church of Columbus, speaker at the ladies night Methodist Brotherhood meeting Wednesday night.

Rev. Lancaster declared that the church has only recently "engaged in conflict with its real foe". For years the church fought against science and stuck with dogmas and tradition. It is now beginning to try to fight real evils, he said.

The war has caused many people to find out "that God really matters", he stated. "Many of our

NAZI LEADERS PAVING WAY FOR REIGN OF DEATH

Hitler Ready To Exceed The Brutality Of Attila In Useless Sacrifice

WITH THE U. S. THIRD ARMY, ON THE MOSELLE, Oct. 12—On the fringe of the Reich, up and down the Moselle here, symptoms are becoming as numerous as the falling Autumn leaves that Hitler is ready to exceed the brutality of Attila the Hun in cold bloodedly sacrificing the German people simply to prolong the war for another six months.

Informants, both neutral and otherwise, who are fleeing into Allied hands from inside Germany within recent days say that one harsh measure after another is being enforced by the Nazi zealots.

The Hitler henchmen, in recent weeks, are disregarding individual rights completely and make no pretext of abiding by legal procedure, according to persons who have escaped from inside Germany.

These same sources assert that Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Nazi Gestapo, Josef Goebbels, head of the Reich propaganda machine, and Nazi party leader Martin Bormann, acting on behalf of Hitler himself, are staking everything to draw out the war through the winter in a desperate race to swell the ranks of the Wehrmacht.

Far Reaching Plan
Underneath this procedure, according to reports from the Reich, is a far-reaching Nazi plan to systematically change the complexion of the German army into a sort of peoples army.

German troops, thus far strictly aligned under the military high command, would be reconstructed into something of a mass mob. It would take orders from Hitler alone, if the Nazi leaders succeed in their plan, and would be prepared for all-out gang warfare anywhere and everywhere.

The Fuehrer, according to information obtained here, is ready to order the German people to battle the Allies at every street and every bush and to yield no ground inside the fatherland.

Roaming guerrilla bands by the hundreds would flee to woods and villages and continue the fight in any area occupied by Allied troops, according to the plan.

The Nazi war machine, meanwhile, has conscripted 16-year-old boys to serve as cannon fodder for the winter while Hitler's helpers organize for their battle to the death.

Ugly Forerunners
Already listed as ugly forerunners of the lengths to which the cornered Nazis are willing to go in saving their own necks from the noose a few months longer are the sadistic orders from Hitler's Gestapo.

Himmler has warned that any German in occupied Reich territory who cooperates with the Allies will be found dead. German judges pronouncing a verdict against a German on behalf of the Allies will be crucified, he said.

All of this, however, is hardly new as far as Hitler and his cohorts are concerned. Their blood-curdling statements predicting Hitler would either fulfill his so-called mission as Europe's messiah or would perish in death and ruin were sounded both before and after 1933.

The Hitler men, thus far, have been thwarted in efforts to carry out their threats. The Allied blitz trio—Generals Bradley, Montgomery and Patton—gave them no time, either in France or Belgium.

Hopes for Time
Hitler, however, hopes to gain time now for a great final stand that will result in a blood bath inside Germany—a reign of death and terror unequalled since the days of Attila and Genghis Khan. The purge of the Wehrmacht officer corps was a first step in building of the peoples army. The purge sidetracked the orthodox Prussian factions who, like their predecessors in World War I, were willing to consider this as a lost conflict and concentrate on the next war.

Departure of the Wehrmacht's top officers, moreover, gave Hitler a free hand control of the army, and he reverted to his unorthodox methods that are strictly akin to his tactics in the bygone days of beer hall putsches.

Himmler, meanwhile, got control of the army whip, and cracks it without restraint and with Hitler's sanction to such an extent that he virtually owns every German subject, body and soul.

Every German, in the eyes of

Lunch time refreshment

DRINK Coca-Cola 5¢

Hitler and Himmler, now is just so much raw meat who can live only so long as he will pull a trigger or hurl a grenade.

Depends on Mob
The armed mob, which Hitler now intends to rely on, has grown from what the Fuehrer once considered gutter snipe to a group as important as the Wehrmacht's elite units.

Judging from reports inside Germany, Hitler's desperation and his plans for carrying on the last stages of the war do not yet show signs of misfiring. If what I heard along the Moselle listening posts is correct, a rapidly growing number of German people are accepting Hitler's latest promises just as they did before 1933.

Goebbels' skillful propaganda is designed for German ears. Paving the way to effect Hitler's plan for home defense is one of the reasons that the little club-footed Goebbels has not missed a single opportunity in recent weeks to build up fear in the hearts of Germans.

His prime song has been that the Allies' post-war plans would eliminate Germany as a nation, and, for the past couple of days, he has shrieked that the Allies plan to value their German mark at ten cents for a dollar in contrast to the forty cent level affixed under Nazi standards.

The German people, consequently, are preparing to fight the war to a complete finish, arm-in-arm with Hitler—what with the Fuehrer promising eventual victory, Goebbels preaching a gospel of hate and fear and Himmler threatening laggards with death.

POPE DESCRIBED AS THIN, AGED, HURT BY WAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—Pope Pius XII was described today as "aged, thin and saddened" because of the war by Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of the New York Catholic diocese.

In a letter written from Rome to be read in all New York Catholic churches on Mission Sunday, Oct. 22, the archbishop said:

"Fifteen months of anxiety and pain have taken a heavy toll. No robust physical stature nor strong broad shoulders has the Pope to bear the sorrows of the world, but the Christlike figure, Christlike shoulders and above all, a Christlike sanctity and spirit seem to characterize him.

"It is impossible for me to see him without identifying or rather paralleling his life with the life of Christ and the Cross of Christ, and today he reminds me of the wounded Christ."

Archbishop Spellman said that despite the ravages of war, missionaries have been leaving this country for distant lands to spread the knowledge of God.

He closed his letter with a plea for more prayers and material aid for the missions everywhere.

"The war has wrought much havoc on missions in many parts of the world," he declared. "Missionary priests, brothers and sisters need imperatively the two-fold aims of spiritual and material help."

"In the past, Catholic countries of Europe were relied on to provide a major part of the mission needs. These countries are now poverty-stricken, unable to supply manpower or material aid to any great extent."

GOOD BEGINNING

ROME was not built in a day, nor can the peace of the world be assured by a few weeks discussion. But the mere fact that the four nations holding most actual and potential power in the world were willing to sit down and discuss means of making and assuring peace is a good beginning. Moreover, the will of the nations toward peace is the most important factor. A nation which talks peace but whose leaders keep one eye on plans for starting the next war is not really a force for peace, nor a nation unwilling to give up anything for the pearl of great price. But nations which really want peace and direct all the forces of their intelligence and will toward it, may succeed in getting it.

The Dumbarton Oaks plan has certain likenesses to that of the League of Nations, but, also, it has differences from that covenant. Certain pitfalls have been avoided, certain realities have been faced.

The proposed charter is no more a finished, unchangeable Law of the Medes and Persians than was the first draft of the Constitution of the United States. That now has 21 Amendments, in form, though only 19 in fact, because one merely repeals another. The Dumbarton Charter will have to be further discussed, revised and improved as time goes on. But it's a start, a design for action.

Last time, squabbling was done after the armistice. This time it is well to have most of it done before. Peace begins with better understanding.

BAYEUX TAPESTRY SAFE

THE Bayeux tapestry, in which a contemporary depicts the Norman conquest of England in 1066, is safe. As one of the most prized possessions of France, it was natural to suppose that the Nazis would grab it. Rumors have spoken of it as being in Hitler's castle at Berchtesgaden, also of its having been seized by Goering. Now the French report that not only the Bayeux tapestry, but also those other jewels of art owned by France, the Venus de Milo and the Mona Lisa, are all safe. They had been hidden before the Nazis could get them.

It was no lack of will that kept the Nazis from getting them. They just were not smart enough.

"Treating your adversary with respect," said Dr. Samuel Johnson, that forthright 18th century British sage, "is giving him an advantage to which he is not entitled." That is one mistake which Americans will never make for the Nazis and the Japanese.

With cigarettes getting rarer and rarer, how about reviving the boyhood use of cornsilks?

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND
By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Perhaps never in American history had there been such a unique situation between two men once engaged in a bitter, cutthroat race for the White House as occurred between Franklin Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie.

Ever since Pearl Harbor, Roosevelt and Willkie had been reasonably good friends. They never quite trusted each other politically, yet they had profound respect for the other's ideals and convictions. And plans were under way, just before Willkie was taken sick, for even closer collaboration between the two.

It was a closely guarded White House secret, but one week before Roosevelt went to Quebec to confer with Churchill, he asked for Willkie's private telephone number in Indiana—Rushville 2346—and sent word that he would want to see him before Willkie went on to California, where he was to try a case for the Giaminis. FDR had in mind asking Willkie to serve as his personal representative in Germany, in the event of an early armistice.

Willkie, of course, was taken sick at Rushville and entered a New York hospital. He went to California, and he never saw the President.

Several times the two men were on the verge of personal rows, but they never clung to a basic, though sometimes precarious, mutual esteem.

PRESIDENT APOLOGIZES TO WILLKIE

One occasion was while Willkie was on the last leg of his airplane flight around the world. He had just crossed from Siberia to Alaska when newspapermen met him with the press conference wisecrack Roosevelt had made about Willkie's pronunciation of the word "reservoir," the President giving it the more genteel Harvard accent in contrast to Willkie's harsh, middle western "r." Shown a copy of the President's remark, Willkie was nettled, felt he had been publicly ridiculed, was about to issue a public rejoinder. But he decided to wait until he got back to the USA.

He was always glad he waited. For the next day, arriving at Calgary, Willkie received a telegram of apology from FDR and a request that he come immediately to Washington.

Willkie took very seriously that world reporting trip for the President. He felt keenly some of the things that were going on in India and China and, when he arrived in Minneapolis, he went to the home of John Cowles, co-publisher of the Cowles newspapers, for a long conference with Governor Stassen and the Cowles brothers. All evening they discussed the nature of the report Willkie should make to the President.

Next day Willkie's airplane was late. It circled and circled over the Washington airport waiting for clear weather to permit a landing. He arrived at the White House tired, his stomach a bit upset, but gave a painstaking report to the President.

ROOSEVELT LISTENS ATTENTIVELY

Word was widely circulated afterward that instead of listening to Willkie, FDR had interrupted, given him his own views, and that Willkie was hurt. I took occasion to ask Willkie about this, but he said that the President had listened intently for an

DIET AND HEALTH

A Scientific Study Of The Blood Cells

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

"SHE (OR HE) looks anemic. Don't you think something to build up the blood would be a good thing?" The doctor often hears

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

this suggestion from an anxious mother, wife or husband. Or the parents hear it from a solicitous neighbor. Sometimes the suggestion is justified. The doctor may be so preoccupied with the primary disease that he overlooks the secondary damage it has done to the blood, and the correction of this by a diet rich in iron may turn the scales and start the invalid on the road to recovery.

There is one thing sure. If the doctor thinks the suggestion is pertinent he can find out exactly and in the most scientific way all about the condition of his patient's blood. Our knowledge on the subject is most complete.

Blood a Tissue

The blood is a tissue just as muscle or bone or liver are tissues. It consists of cells and matrix or intercellular substance. The only peculiarity in the case of the blood being that the intercellular substance is fluid. It has to be because the function of the blood is that of a messenger to carry chemical substances from one part of the body to the other, and a messenger has to be fluid. He has to be able to move.

When the pathologist pricks your finger or your ear lobe to get a drop of blood, it looks like an opaque red drop. But you know by experience that if you put the drop on a glass surface, or collect enough blood in a test tube to see the phenomenon easily that it will separate out into a hard, sticky, tenacious red clotted part, and a clear straw-colored fluid. The clear fluid, or serum, contains most of the chemicals that the blood carries from tissue to tissue, and the red part contains the blood cells. It is these blood cells that are deficient in cases of anemia.

We have modern means of studying them very completely. As long ago as about 1870, a German professor of medicine marked off a space on a capillary tube so that it would contain exactly one cubic millimeter and filled it with this over blood and then emptied that blood out on a microscope slide, and with the aid of the microscope counted every one of the red blood cells. He found there were six million. And on counting the same amount of blood taken from a number of his associates he found that in all healthy humans that amount was absolutely constant.

Modern Methods of Counting

But counting up to six million is quite a chore, and the modern laboratory technician has simplified it by diluting the blood very exactly in salt solution and putting it in one of the finest calibrated chambers you ever saw and counting only the number of red cells in a given square and correcting by multiplication, he can give you the number of red cells you have in about five minutes. And since the original observations it has been confirmed over and over that all healthy human beings from birth to old age, male and female, have about six million cells per cubic millimeter.

After you have given blood to the blood bank your count goes down for a week or two. You have, in fact, a mild secondary anemia. Your bone marrow, which is the manufacturing plant for red blood cells soon makes this up. When a disease like influenza or some other infection, knocks out your bone marrow your count goes down and here the treatment is to give food or drugs which stimulate the marrow—liver, spinach, red meat, iron and arsenic.

The pathologist will also estimate how red your blood is, because that tells the amount of hemoglobin which is the iron-containing pigment in the red blood cells. It carries oxygen from the lungs to the tissues and when it is low in anemic people they get short of breath for that reason.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. L.—Has anyone ever been cured of diabetes by taking insulin? What does insulin come from?

Answer: Not cured, but so long as the insulin is taken it controls the diabetes. Insulin is extracted from the pancreas. Diabetes is caused by the disappearance of certain cells in the pancreas.

CHAPTER FORTY-THREE

"SO YOU wish to establish a law in New York out of pure gratitude. Is that right?" Russell demanded of Dr. Raynor.

The doctor laughed happily. "You're right. Tell Dan I want to help him. He'll understand. And I'm quite sure he'll be sensible."

Russell wasn't quite sure of anything as he drove back to Talbot after leaving Dr. Raynor in Baltimore. The doctor had surprised him. And the offer for Dan had been breath taking. He believed the man meant it, and he also knew how generous an offer it was. It meant a whole new life for Dan. He blinked at the thought of Dan in a bank, a broker's office, anything he wanted, as the man had said. And there was not much doubt the man could place him. There was something awe-inspiring about the casual way he'd spoken of giving Dan a bank account and no questions asked.

And Dan was Anne's husband. Was it possible the doctor guessed such an incredible thing and was using this way to buy him off? No, that didn't make sense. Was it possible he knew Russell was in love with Anne and had begged her to marry him? In that case he would be killing two birds with one stone, not only binding Dan with ties of gratitude but himself as well. Could all the jovial laughter and good nature have been really part of a clever scheme? If so, Dr. Raynor was a great actor as well as a great surgeon.

Russell got back to find Dan in the kitchen preparing dinner for them. Dan was dressed in his rough shirt and old corduroys again. The shirt had been washed, but not ironed, and was wrinkled if clean. Dan had done it himself. His bare feet were thrust into slippers and he had a towel to mop his face because it was "hot in the kitchen. Russell looked at him and again a wave of emotion swept over him. He loved his brother. Dan meant a lot to him. Whatever was done, it had to be for Dan.

Dan turned and saw him and grinned. "Better stay out of here or you'll wilt. Go sit on the porch till I call you. I just got out of a cold tub a little while ago, but look at me now."

"I wanted to get a cook."

Dan pushed him out of the kitchen. "I'm cook and bottle washer around here. That's all the good I can be any way. You've got to save your money so we can go traveling. We'll stop at cabins over night and I'll show you how to live cheap. And don't look at me like I was something you wanted to step over. I washed the old shirt and it's clean, anyway. I'm clean, too—clean broke and clean happy."

Russell put an arm about his shoulders. "You're a swell kid." "Such language from a lawyer! How about Mrs. Reynolds?" "I came by the hospital. I saw Anne, but just for a minute. Everyone's hopeful."

Dan laughed and looked down at his bare ankles. "Did Anne ask for me?" "She most certainly did. I told you I only saw her for a minute or two, but I told her you and I were driving to California together."

"What did she say to that?" Dan still kept his eyes down and his foot moved nervously. Russell lifted his face and grinned. "What do you think?"

Dan drew a quick breath. "That isn't hard to figure out. She said, 'Well, take that bum as far as you can and dump him into the Pacific ocean.'"

"I don't think she would use the word 'bum.'"

"I guess not. Laura expresses it better."

Russell clapped him on the shoulder. "You know, you and I don't agree about you at all. Anne said she wanted to see you before you went. She said it was most important, and I promised her you would see her."

"What's the use? All I want is to get away—and that's all."

"You can't run away from some things, Dan."

"Yes, I can." The blue eyes flashed with the old deliberation. "I'm not in jail. I can run away from anything—yes, a wife, too. That's what the west is for. You start again. No questions asked. That's what I need."

"You tried that, Dan, and you came back. Was that only to see me?"

Dan lowered his eyes. "It'll be better if you do go out with me."

"And Anne?"

"I'm doing the only decent thing I can in clearing out. I'm giving her a break. I'll tell her so. I've promised I won't slip off again. You've made that the hard way. I'm no dope. If I can slide out to L. A. on cushions, why not?"

Russell laughed huskily. "You try hard to be tough and thick-skinned, don't you? But I know better now. By the way, California may be out."

Dan looked up quickly. "You mean you changed your mind?"

"Don't look scared. Does it mean all that to you?"

The thin shoulders shrugged. "You're the boss. I guess it was a stupid idea. Anyway, I've got to watch my grub or we don't eat. The motto is eat today and to heck with tomorrow. Oh, yes, I charged what I bought to you."

"I put money in your trousers, Dan. The suit you wore last night."

"That's funny. I'm so used to having nothing I didn't even look."

There was a long silence. Dan worked and Russell watched. He thought of Dan wandering about the country, getting jobs washing dishes and scouring pans so he could eat. They called dishwashing pearl diving. And Dan had always been wanting money before he went on the road. Dan had been kicked out of two colleges because he wouldn't "conform." He was basically lazy and extravagant, unfit for higher education, one dean had written. This Dan who was bustling so earnestly in spite of the heat wasn't lazy or extravagant.

Today's Horoscope

You love, work and play with enthusiasm and energy, if today is your natal day. You are proud and reserved, discreet in your associations, and strive to attain high ideals. Choose a mate born under your own sign and you will be happy. In the next 12 months, provided nervous exhaustion is avoided, and care exercised in diet, also business correspondence, investments and legal matters, a modicum of good fortune is foreseen. Born today a child will have lofty ideals and high aspirations, and be moderately successful and popular. Sudden financial losses are threatened, however.

One-Minute Test Answer

1. Walt Whitman.
2. Thomas Dunn English.
3. It was the home of Louisa M. Alcott and her family, and is in Concord, Mass.

SEARCH FOR ADVENTURE

WHEN COLUMBUS found America 452 years ago, his great adventure was crowned with success. But the factor which made it an adventure was the fact that he didn't know just what was going to happen. He knew he and the crews of his three little ships were risking dangers—of what kind he could not be sure. That element also lends a good deal of the excitement to bridge. Unexpected things may happen to you—and to your opponents.

WASHINGTON Report

China the Perennial Problem of the World
Writer Thinks Chinese Should Try Help Selves

By HELEN ESSARY

WASHINGTON—One of the pictorial magazines did an article a few weeks ago on gossip as a weapon in the presidential campaigns of several generations ago. Whispers around, for example, that the opposition candidate for the White House had an illegitimate child or two was regarded as a pretty method of getting your own hero elected to the highest office this country offers.

Such crude slander is happily outmoded. It is illegitimate ideas that are the menace and the ammunition, too, in election years. Since most people are terrified of illegitimate ideas—call them unorthodox—if you prefer—the candidate who is bold enough to think outside the realm of the conventional pattern is offering himself as a target for the opposition.

A new idea, born outside restricted thinking, brands a man or woman as a crackpot. Sex morality has grown a trifle vague for the duration. There are many agencies to look after unfortunate illegitimate children.

But the producer of illegitimate ideas—ah, there is a villain. Or a villain-ess. Make way to the ducking stool certainly for the woman who doesn't think with the crowd.

This little homily brings me to the point of my story—to my own unorthodox thinking—why year after year, life time after life time, must we continue to worry about China.

I'll venture to wager that you, who are reading this, were asked when you were a child in Sunday School to put your pennies in a mite box to help China. By all means let us help China. But don't let us lose sight of the fact that China should also concentrate on helping herself.

Right now, according to some of the conferees who are worried over the delay in reaching any important agreement at Dumbarton Oaks, it is China which is the stumbling block in the plans for peace and reasonable security in the post-war world, the much hoped for post-war world, that somehow gets farther and farther away. The beautiful post-war world is likely just a mirage. We run up to its calm oasis. And it is not there at all.

But to return to China—the representatives of China at Dumbarton Oaks, according to my excellent authority, insist on an international post-war police force. China wants to be protected from Japan.

Protected by whom? By what country's police force? Shall the international police force be made up of English policemen? Of Italians, since we are again their friends? Of Russians? Of Central Europeans? Of Americans? Of the French?

To date, no suggestion made by the representatives of Russia, Britain and the United States at Dumbarton Oaks as to the—shall we say personnel—of the police force which China demands be allotted for her protection, pleases China.

It is a curious fact that in Washington when an idea begins to spread, when a truth once concealed is permitted, even encouraged to lift its drooping head, you suddenly find the same thought popping out in seemingly unrelated groups.

For example, at Mrs. Roosevelt's first press conference since May, she revealed an unexpected attitude toward China. She was speaking of Madame Chiang Kai-shek. She said that she admired Madame Chiang very much—personally.

But—she found it difficult to understand the route by which the Chinese mind, as evidenced in Madame Chiang, reached conclusions.

Mrs. Roosevelt said that she herself might have the same goal and quite often did, that Madame Chiang was trying to get to. But Madame Chiang, although educated in the United States, had quite naturally reverted to the Chinese way of thinking when she returned to China.

Now Madame Chiang was again in the United States. Mrs. Roosevelt had seen her in New York and thought she looked quite badly—though she was not desperately ill. Madame Chiang, so intimated Mrs. Roosevelt, was continuing to approach problems by her own native oriental route.

I thought these remarks of Mrs. Roosevelt very significant. Perhaps they were one of those trial balloons which the wife of the president so cleverly unleashes. It may be that the administration is getting bored with China's helplessness.

PIN-WORMS

At Last—
A Real Treatment!

You may not realize how many of your neighbors—grown-ups as well as children—have Pin-Worms at this very moment. People don't talk about this nasty infection. Sometimes they are too embarrassed to mention the tormenting rectal itching; and up to now they have usually suffered in silence because they have not known of any effective way to deal with this dreadful pest that lives inside the human body.

Important Medical Discovery
Today, thanks to a valuable scientific discovery, a remarkable new treatment has been made possible. It is based on a special drug, known as gentian violet. This drug is the vital element in P-W, the new Pin-Worm tablets developed by Dr. D. Jayne & Son, America's leading specialists in worm medicines. P-W tablets are small and easy to take, and they act in a special, gentle way to destroy Pin-Worms.
It is very easy to "catch" this nasty infection, and the ugly creatures can cause real distress. So watch for the signs that may mean Pin-Worms: itching seat, uneasy stomach, bed-wetting, nervous fidgeting. If you suspect Pin-Worms, get a box of P-W right away and follow the simple directions carefully.
P-W means Pin-Worm relief!

DRYS SEEK TO ROLL UP RECORD MINORITY VOTE

Prohibition Fire Centers
Mainly On Border
State Of Kentucky

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The Prohibition party today is making its supreme political bid for a record minority vote—in what may be a "close" election year—with a national ticket and 33 candidates for congress.

The Prohibition fire is centered mainly on the border state of Kentucky, which is a special concern of both major party presidential candidates, and on Michigan. Together these states have 54 electoral votes. The "drys" have 24 of their 33 congressional candidates running in these two states.

Edward E. Blake, national Prohibition party chairman, predicted in Chicago that the dry presidential candidate, Claude A. Watson of Los Angeles, "will poll the largest vote ever cast for a Prohibition party presidential candidate."

Blake based his prediction that this year's prohibition vote will top the previous high of approximately 300,000 on the "head start" his candidate had. Watson, nominated over a year ago, began campaigning last Jan. 9 and by the time President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had won their nominations, Blake pointed out in 30 states. Blake pointed out.

In Kentucky, the whisky-producing state in which the Prohibition party this year has a candidate for the U. S. senate and for each of the nine house seats.

In Michigan the party has a candidate in 14 of the 17 congressional districts. Michigan does not elect a senator this year. Other states in which Prohibition party congressional candidates are running are:

Arizona, one for house; California, two for house; Kansas, senate; Massachusetts, senate; New Jersey, senate and one house; North Dakota, senate; Oklahoma, one for house.

In Washington, spokesmen for the Anti-Saloon League and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union pointed out that these organizations support congressional candidates on their dry voting records or pledges and not by party label. State or local units of these organizations, it was emphasized, may well support a Republican or Democrat instead of a Prohibition candidate.

In close congressional districts, however, the Prohibition party vote may go far toward deciding whether the house—now under bare Democratic control with 215 to 212 seats—will remain Democratic or go Republican.

RICHARD BONG AGAIN LEADS AS SLAYER OF JAPS

FIFTH AIRFORCE HEADQUARTERS, DUTCH NEW GUINEA, Oct. 12.—Major Richard Bong, the boyish mid-western fighter pilot, has reestablished himself as America's top ace by shooting down two Japanese planes over Borneo, International News Service learned exclusively.

Recently returned from a two-month leave in the United States, Bong now has a score of 30 Japanese aircraft destroyed to his credit. The fighting major clearly demonstrated that his leave has not impaired his deadly combat eye or fatal marksmanship.

While acting as an "observer" with a formation of pilots he was training to be expert gunners, Bong, according to Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, chief of the Far Eastern Airforces, was "forced to defend himself against the Japs" and in so doing upped his total of kills by two.

Bong is now an aerial gunner instructor for the Far Eastern Airforces training center and on the occasion of the Borneo incident accompanied his "graduating class" in order to check their air discipline the first time they met the enemy after completing their course.

The blonde, blue-eyed Poplar, Wis., veteran of Southwest Pacific dog-fighting, was originally credited with 27 Jap planes in April and shortly thereafter his score was increased by one when air intelligence uncovered the wreckage of a Nip plane in Hollandia harbor, which Bong had previously claimed as "probable."

The plane was definitely established as one of Bong's kills since he had given intelligence officers the exact location of the coral reef near which the "probable" had plunged into the sea.

SOLDIERS TOO BUSY TO GUESS ON PEACE DATE

Unanimous Opinion Of Yanks Is That Hard
Fighting Awaits

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—American soldiers have largely ceased speculating about the end of the war in Europe, a group of congressmen just returned from France disclosed today.

"They're too busy fighting," commented Rep. Stockman (R) Oregon.

"They're making no speculations at all," asserted Rep. Hays (D) Ark. "The unanimous opinion was that there was hard fighting ahead."

Rep. Miller (R) Neb., remarked that whereas soldiers formerly talked of the war ending in October, they spoke now of "by the end of the year," if they made any predictions at all.

"There's a rather cautious type of optimism," stated Rep. Fisher (D) Tex., "but I heard very few predictions of when the war would end."

"They feel that the end of the war is approaching," added Rep. Phillips (R) Calif., "but as to when it's going to be—well, you pay your money and you take your choice."

"Hopeful that the war would end this year," was the way Rep. Poage (D) Tex., described it. "The closer you get to the front, the more you realize what a grim struggle is going on," declared Miller.

"There was a spirit of confidence among the men," disclosed Fisher, "and the hope that victory would come soon."

"There was less opinion expressed among the soldiers about the end of the war than here in this country," commented Stockman.

"The high command wouldn't commit itself as to when the war would end," said Poage, who visited Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters.

"I think our generals are prepared for whatever may happen, for a full winter's war, if necessary," declared Hays.

ESTATE APPRAISED

hour and a half with scarcely a word of interruption.

Later, however, Willkie was slightly irked when, after the Australian government had invited him to go to Australia, the White House had Mrs. Roosevelt go instead. Willkie felt that the President had not wanted him to get the publicity build-up which might come from such a trip and intervened with the Australian government.

A period of coolness followed, deepened momentarily by a Marquis Childs magazine article in which Childs quoted various belittling remarks Roosevelt was reported to have made about Willkie. The President immediately wrote Willkie a long letter taking up, point by point, the errors in Childs' article. It was a letter written by a man who cherishes the esteem of another, and it had the desired effect.

WILLKIE AS FDR'S RUNNING MATE

One of the most confidential chapters in the relations between the two men took place just prior to the Democratic convention, when a high-up member of the Administration conferred with Willkie and then with Roosevelt about the possibility of Willkie's becoming his Vice Presidential running-mate. Willkie was open-minded, though skeptical that such unusual action would be taken by a Democratic decline.

The President in turn said he would be delighted to have Willkie as his running-mate, provided there was a spontaneous move from the convention to nominate him. He added that he did not want anything to take place that looked like a political deal between them.

It was on this same day that

FDR wrote his much-controverted letter to Willkie suggesting that they get together for a talk in the near future. He scribbled the note in longhand, and it was later typed and mailed by his secretary, Grace Tully. The President had already left for the West Coast and never actually signed it.

At Chicago a move to draft Willkie actually got under way. Senator Wagner of New York was the center of the move, and actually cleared the decks to make a speech putting Willkie's name before the convention as Vice President. Edward Loughlin, head of Tammany, was anxious to second the nomination. He polled most of the New York delegation and found enthusiastic support.

However, when Wagner and Loughlin consulted the Big City bosses who were running things, they got a dose of cold water. Messrs. Hannegan, Kelly, Flynn and Hague were determined to put across Truman and nothing could deter them.

Many Democratic delegates still believe, however, that had the convention been unbosomed and free to debate the pros and cons of the candidates, Wendell Willkie would have ended up as Vice Presidential nominee on the Democratic ticket.

WAR JOB SAVES SAWMILL MAN FROM SENTENCE

Because he is playing a vital role in war production work Elba Frazier, Route 3, Laurelville, will not start serving a workhouse sentence until December 10.

Frazier was sentenced to the workhouse in Ross county common pleas court on charges of committing assault and battery on Carey DeLong of Chillicothe. When his employer, Benton Pritchard, sawmill owner, appeared before the court and said he could find no replacement for Frazier, his sawmill operator, and that he would be forced to close down his mill which is engaged in producing materials for the war effort, sentence was deferred.

The court placed Frazier under $1,000 bond with the understanding he would surrender voluntarily December 10 to begin serving his sentence.

Major E. F. Hurley, who suffered an arm injury recently while in action in France, has this new address: Major E. F. Hurley, 0-318926, 4106 Army Hospital Plant, Det. of Patients, APO 511, c/o Postmaster, New York City, N. Y. His wife, Mrs. Helen Hurley, and three children are living with her mother, Mrs. Pearl Long, at Five Points.

Private First Class John F. McCollister, is making a good recovery after being wounded in France. His injury was a slight wound in the left hand. He is now in a hospital in England.

Staff Sergeant Charles Baker is spending a 20-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Millard Baker, of Kingston.

Damon Pontious, of Laurelville, who is serving aboard the aircraft carrier, Wasp, wrote home that he felt the Hocking County election board to be really on its toes since he was the first man aboard the big carrier to receive a service man's ballot.

THEY NEVER STOP WORKING... Except when you're asleep!

SOMEONE has said that with the exception of the heart, the muscles of the eyes are the hardest working muscles in the entire human body. Because your eyes never stop working except when they are closed!

Mankind grew up out of doors—where nature's own light was abundant. That explains why modern eyes are so overworked—so often defective. And that is why science is working so hard to bring sunlight indoors. In the meantime—here are four rules that will help reduce eyestrain—conserve energy—in your home.

1 Do all reading, studying, sewing, or game-playing close to a good light source, preferably a modern reading lamp.

2 Avoid glare from bare bulbs. Don't sit facing the light. Glare strains eyes.

3 Avoid shadows. Make sure you have good light directly on your book or work. Shadows strain eyes.

4 Have eyes examined regularly. If eyes are defective, vision can be greatly helped with proper glasses.

When the war is over we are all going to have Better Light for Better Sight. In the meantime, let's conserve both eyesight and light. Take care of your eyes, but don't waste light.

BALTIMORE ORIOLES WIN LITTLE WORLD SERIES

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 12—The Baltimore Orioles, International League pennant winners, today held their first little world series championship in 19 years.

The Orioles clinched the championship last night by defeating the Louisville Colonels of the American Association, 5-3, before 23,500 fans in the Baltimore stadium.

Baltimore made it a grand slam this season, having won the IL pennant and playoffs before engaging the AA pennant winners in the series.

The Orioles used three pitchers—Stan West, Sam Lowry and Bo Palica—to down the Kentuckians. The Colonels were leading, 3-2, until the seventh inning, when the Orioles staged a three-run rally. Palica held the Colonels scoreless in the last three sessions.

Baltimore tallied 10 hits off Kentucky pitchers Mel Deutsch and Dwight Simonds.

LANDIS IMPROVED

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—Improvement in the condition of Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball confined to St. Luke's hospital for treatment of a severe cold, was reported today. Landis was unable to attend the World Series last week between the St. Louis Browns and Cardinals because of his illness. It was the first series he had missed since becoming czar of the sport 23 years ago.

DENIS GUEST DETECTIVE

The realistic touch of a live reptile in a television show on Ellery Queen's "Adventure of Cleopatra's Snake," Saturday, will seem like child's play to guest armchair detective, Armand Denis, who filmed the motion picture, "Dangerous Journey," photographing for the first time the weird Hindu ritual of snake worship in which a young priestess three times kisses the head of a deadly cobra.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Arthur Lake, the Dagwood of the "Blondie" programs Sunday nights, is rooting for a new actor and is trying to get everyone in Hollywood interested in him. The fellow is Frank Jones, one of Lake's cousins, who was an English and drama teacher in Tennessee, before being suddenly bitten by the acting bug. He's now in a play, "Hay Fever," in a Los Angeles theatre.

A syndicate wants to add Bob Burns to the newspaper columns, and use his familiar air expression, "I Wanta Tell You—" as its title.

Earl Wild, pianist with Dr. Frank Black's Symphony Orchestra, makes his concert debut at New York's Town Hall Monday, Oct. 30.

Beautiful Hollywood Star Carole Landis, who made her first guest appearance since reaching New York last Friday on the CBS "Stage Door Canteen" program, is not in the East purely for pleasure. In fact, the main purpose of her trip is to make a number of promised appearances in Army hospitals.

"The Dream of the Bimbo from Limbo," Milton Geiger's unusual "We Who Dream" script, is being considered for a coming anthology of the best radio dramas of the year. The story will be repeated on the fantasy series on Friday.

Bing Crosby makes his first radio appearance since his overseas tour on his regular program Thursday night. The Hollywood end of the show is planning a surprise for Crosby.

SHOW CATTLE TO BE BEST OF FAIR HISTORY

Prize Winners At Urbana
To Be Exhibited Among Outstanding Animals

Some of the best cattle ever exhibited here will be seen at the Pickaway Junior fair next week, F. K. Blair, county agriculture agent, said Thursday.

On exhibit by 4-H club members will be two animals which won prizes at the state Angus show in Urbana. Norman Godden will show the cow which won first prize at the state show and another which won second prize. One of the prize winners was purchased at an eastern sale for $3,750 and is valued at $5,000 now. Other outstanding Angus cattle will be shown by Dale Schiff, Ashville, and Billy Smith, son of the herdsman at the Shaw farms at Williamsport.

To See Calf
The Pickaway County Aberdeen Angus Breeders' association will offer for sale at the livestock sale one of its outstanding calves as an added incentive in the fat steer project.

Five yearling heifers will be shown in the dairy cattle exhibit by the Pickaway Dairy Co-operative association.

Several special awards will be given for livestock exhibits. The Circleville Herald will award its annual trophy to the owner of the grand champion fat beef steer. The Ralston-Purina company, the John W. Eshelman and Sons company and the Circleville Lumber company will each give a $25 war bond to the winner in the three beef breeds of the fat steer class.

Prizes Offered
The Pickaway County Livestock Cooperative association will award prizes in each of the three beef breeds of fat steers, of $5, $4, $3, $2, and $1. The Ralston-Purina company will award a trophy to the owner of the grand champion fat pig. The John W. Eshelman and Sons company will award a total of $30 in cash prizes to the winner in the 4-H market class of swine. Ringgold Farms, Robert Musser, owner, will award a trophy to the owner of the champion Hampshire gilt. The Third National bank will award $10 in prizes in the market class of sheep.

Strathvold Farms, Charles Walters, owner, will award a purebred Ayrshire bull calf to the exhibitor of the best Ayrshire female who does not have a registered Ayrshire bull in their herd at present or prior to October 1, 1944. In case all exhibitors have registered Ayrshire bulls the calf will be given to the exhibitor of the champion Ayrshire female. Ringgold Farms will award a trophy to the winner of the best Guernsey female exhibited. The dairy association will give $5 to the owner of the grand champion female in each dairy breed and will award a trophy to the winner of the showmanship contest in the 4-H dairy classes.

The Second National bank will award a special premium to the owner of the best Jersey female in the fair. John W. Eshelman and Sons company will give $3 extra premium money for each registered dairy animal in the show. Pickaway County Aberdeen Angus Breeders' association will give 10 cash prizes to winners in the Angus breeding class. Dean Golden, Williamsport, will award $25 for the grand champion steer providing it is an Angus.

Junior Chamber of Commerce will award a trophy or banner to the most outstanding boys' 4-H club in the county in 1944.

RECRUITER FOR WACS COMING TO CITY WEEKLY

Sgt. William E. King Jr., of the Army recruiting service, will be at the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric company office in Circleville Monday from noon until 5 p. m. to interview women interested in the Women's Army Corps.

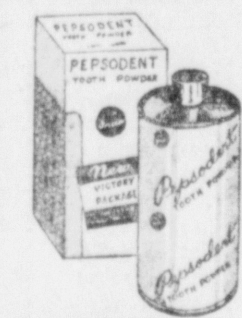

Sgt. King announced that he would be here every Monday at the same hours. Circulars and pamphlets outlining the opportunities of the WAC are on display at the light company office.
